

December 2010
Suncrest Christian Church

January 2nd!

Launching at the Walkerton Campus!
Re-launching at Highland for both services!

5th & 6th graders are unique! They are just getting to know who they are, they still listen to the adults in their lives and are especially open to hearing from God. Team 56 gives preteens a place to belong and helps them answer the tough questions.

Team 56 looks like this:

Fun! the environment is preteen focused. It's fast paced, loud and fun! "Think teen before you think child."

Growing through Community - relationship and journeying together provides a more stable foundation for a growing faith, than knowledge alone or always having the "right" answer.

Interactive - Preteens grapple with the tough questions by looking at what God has to say about it in the Bible.

Adults Facilitators - help kids come to God-honoring conclusions to their tough questions. Just like adults, preteens own their own conclusions in a way that they will never embrace the directives of another person.

4C Christ-followers:

Care about people far from God - we will have a culture that encourages kids to think about and pray for their friends who need to know God. There will opportunities to serve in the community and fun events intended for inviting friends.

Cultivate a personal relationship with Jesus Christ - We will provide opportunities for them to learn more about what following Christ means and encourage kids to get to know this Jesus, whom we love.

Contribute by serving - students will help decide what we do to contribute both inside Suncrest and in the community.

Connect in community where truth meets life - kids are encouraged to connect with other Christ-followers for accountability and encouragement. We provide small group environments on Sunday morning as well as urging preteens to develop community with other Christ-followers in their own environments throughout the week.

You Do Make a Difference!

Lifting her hands and singing with the music. Faithfully showing up to church every Sunday in that bright orange shirt. Teaching my classmates and I about the Bible, its writers, and what it means. Suelene, one of my former Sunday school teachers, always cares for others and lets them know they're appreciated. Mrs. Suelene shows her faith in God not just to me but to everyone around her.

Compared to me, Mrs. Suelene's tall, but she's probably medium height. Every time I see Mrs. Suelene, she is wearing her bright orange shirt and a huge smile. With her orange-brown hair and her twinkling eyes, she is the picture of happiness. To me, she has the air of a princess and the heart and soul of a mother.

Being faithful to God is what she does. Ever so faithfully, she shows up every Sunday, always in her TEAM GO! shirt, and she joins in singing during worship. She always answers the questions of her students, and doesn't get frustrated when they don't understand the first time. When she was my teacher, even when my friends and I were being silly, she just watched and waited for us to stop.

Thinking back to when I was younger, I remember that when Mrs. Suelene taught first graders, I was excited for her to be my teacher. The Munchkins she brought every week were delicious. I remember that in my second week of first grade at my church, Mrs. Suelene didn't showed up. Another teacher, Mary, came in and taught us. Later, I found out a car had crashed into Schoop's while Mrs. Suelene was eating there, and she had gotten a huge black eye. My family and I went to see her, and we brought her lasagna. We got to see her house and her dog, and when Mrs. Suelene came back to church, I was ecstatic.

Caring, loving, and nurturing, Mrs. Suelene is a person who I am glad to know. Loving God and showing others how to is one of the many things she does to show her faith. Love and respect is what I feel for Mrs. Suelene.

Reduce Possession-Obsession

For many families, it's a necessary pre-Christmas ritual: weeding through the old toys just to make room for new ones. Children typically have so much "stuff" they can't keep track of or play with it all. When possessions become a priority, it's time to re-evaluate your family's stance on stuff.

Many of us keep materialism in check most of the year but then slip at Christmas. Although presents aren't bad, you can ease the focus on materialism this season. For example:

Remind your children that Jesus is our best gift. Make sure they know that Christmas is Jesus' birthday and that God sent Jesus because he loves us. When you decorate for Christmas, leave a nativity scene manger empty. Wrap the baby Jesus figurine in a special box and open it on Christmas Eve. Then read Romans 6:23b: "The free gift of God is eternal life through Christ Jesus our Lord."

Discuss the gifts we can give to God. Talk about how you respond when someone gives you a nice gift. Ask children what they can do that God would really like, such as pray or tell a friend about him. As a family, fill out gift cards listing what you can each give to God. Then hang the cards from your Christmas tree or wrap them and place them under your tree as gifts to God.

Encourage children to be generous. Emphasize the importance of giving, not receiving. As a family, participate in a service project for people in need. Help children experience the joy of giving by donating some time and money to others. Talk about how it feels to give, and discuss some ways you can continue doing so in the year ahead.

Buy Buy!

- Each year, 8 to 12 year olds spend $30 billion of their own money and influence another $150 billion of parental spending. (cbsnews.com)
- The negative effects of rampant materialism can be tempered by teaching kids to appreciate what they have. Preteens and teens who are both highly materialistic and highly thankful say they like to spend time helping others. (Harris Interactive)

PowerSource

Ask God:

- To help your family focus on Jesus' birth this Christmas.
- To reduce your emphasis on buying and receiving.
- To help your children treasure God, not earthly things.

Parenting Insights

Despite tough economic times, you can still have a special Christmas. Child-development expert Wanda Draper says, "Celebrating a more modest Christmas materially can be a blessing in disguise." She offers these tips for easing materialism:

1. Don't apologize for a reduced number of gifts. Just "say it will be a new kind of Christmas," Draper says.
2. Discuss how everyone wants to celebrate. Recall previous holidays and what was special to each person.
3. Create homemade gifts for family members and friends. Making the gifts together can lead to even more great memories.
4. Give children an active role. Let them take part in Advent devotions, decorating, baking,

"Beware! Guard against every kind of greed. Life is not measured by how much you own."

Luke 12:15

Our earthly possessions won't matter or be of any use when our lives end. As Luke 12: 21 says, the only thing that matters is having "a rich relationship with God."

Teachable Moments

1. It's a Boy!—Create a birth announcement for Jesus, complete with a baby footprint, if you have or know a newborn. Read Luke 1: 35-38 and discuss how Mary reacted when she found out she was going to be Jesus' mother.

2. 12 Days of Christmas—As a family, come up with 12 acts of service you can perform together during December. For example, shovel snow for a neighbor, donate extra blankets to a homeless shelter, and deliver cookies and cocoa to homebound seniors.
3. Shine On—Read Matthew 2: 2, about the Christmas star. Cut out poster board stars and paint your names on them with glow-in-the-dark paint. Tape the stars to the ceiling above your Christmas tree. Turn off the lights and share ways you can guide others to Jesus, the best gift of all.

"So commit yourselves wholeheartedly to these words of mine. Tie them to your hands and wear them on your forehead as reminders. Teach them to your children. Talk about them when you are at home and when you are ON THE ROAD, when you are going to bed and when you are getting up." Deuteronomy 11:18-19, NLT

Take inventory of your children's thoughts about "stuff" by asking these discussion-starter questions:

1. How can a person tell when he or she has too much stuff? How should you decide what to keep and what to give away?
2. How important are presents to you at Christmas time? How would the holiday be different if we didn't exchange gifts?
3. What does it feel like to give someone a special gift? How do you expect a person to respond when you offer them a present?
4. What are some of the best gifts you've ever received? How is Jesus a gift from God?

Family Experience: Reason for the Season

Take a break from shopping to focus on what happened on that "Silent Night" in Bethlehem more than 2,000 years ago.

- Celebrate Stillness—Gather several CD or music players and some Christmas music. Give everyone an index card and a pencil. Ask family members to write or draw what they'd like for Christmas. As they begin, play different Christmas music on all the players at the same time, at a loud volume. After one minute, stop the music. Say: "Now let's focus on something else, without the distraction." Place a figure of baby Jesus in front of family members and say, "For one minute, pray silently and ask God to show you what's important about Christmas." When time is up, ask: "What answers did you come up with? How was the noisy music like what often happens at Christmas?" Close in prayer, asking God to help your family find time to be quiet and thankful this season.
- Bring the Story to Life—Have family members choose different characters in the Christmas account. Together, write and present a short drama based on each character's experiences. Discuss the different people's perspectives and why Christmas was important to each of them. Make simple costumes. Videotape the play and watch it while enjoying Christmas cookies. You may also want to post the video on a video-sharing site and send the link to family and friends as part of your annual Christmas greeting.

What's Playing at the Movies

Movie: The Chronicles of Narnia: The Voyage of the Dawn Treader (releases Dec. 10)

Genre: Adventure, fantasy

Rating: PG (for some frightening images and sequences of fantasy action)

Cast: Tilda Swinton, Skandar Keynes, Georgie Henley

Synopsis: When Edmond and Lucy return to Narnia with their cousin, they meet Caspian and take a magical trip in the royal ship. Aslan protects the children during encounters with kid-nappers, dragons, dwarves, "merpeople," and more.

Discussion Questions: How can you tell that Jesus is with you when life is "smooth sailing"—and when waves toss you around? What storms have you faced, and how has Jesus helped you through them? Read aloud Mark 4: 35-41. What are some things you're afraid of or some things that seem overwhelming to you? How can Jesus provide calm?

What Music Is Releasing

Artist: Jason Castro

Album: Who I Am

Artist Info: The guitar-playing, dreadlock-wearing Castro, 23, won the hearts of American Idol fans with his renditions of "Hallelujah" and "Over the Rainbow." His new album is a crossover to Christian music.

Summary: "I'm a Christian in whatever I do," Castro says. "Every song in some way is led by what I believe." In "You Are," the first single from Who I Am, Castro sings to God, "You are life more beautiful. You are love more powerful. You are the light that always shines. You are the one."

Discussion Questions: How would you describe who God is, especially to someone who doesn't yet know him? In what ways does God make your life "beautiful"? Read aloud Isaiah 52:7-10. How can you share the good news of God's "victory" with other people?
